Legislature facing major battle over property taxes

A Jackson tax attorney who formerly chaired the Mississippi Economic Council's Taxation Committee declared that the only equitable method of property is one which assesses all property on the same basis - value.

Capital city tax attorney D. Carl Black, Jr., said it would be a mistake to institute a system of property assessments with varying divisions.

"If Mississippi is to have truly equalized assessments," Black said, "a consistent method of taxation based on property value must be established."

Support for reappraisal of property and equalization of property assessments statewide has grown throughout the state, but skirmishes are now taking place over the method of taxing the property once reappraisal is completed.

Some are calling for an equal, across-the-board assessment for all property with the property's worth being the determinant in the amount of property taxes to be paid.

Others suggest classifying property into categories, i.e. utilities, commercial, and farms and homes, thus setting up a guaranteed lower assessment for all farms and homes regardless of value.

Jackson business and apartment developer J. A. (Army) Brown said that lessors of apartments and other rental property should oppose efforts to provide for classification of property for assessment purposes because it would force owners to increase rent on such property.

Classification of property in the state into three categories for tax purposes has been proposed by resolution prefiled for the 1975 legislative session.

Under the proposal, commercial property such as apartments - which in actuality are residential rather than commercial even though they are investments and income producing - would be taxed at a rate 67 percent higher than farm or residential property due to the classification.

Brown said that apartment owners, as well as other businessmen, computed tax burdens into cost of services when setting rates for products or services and that the end effect of the higher tax burden would be higher rent rates.

"The higher tax burden placed on commercial property by classification would inescapably be felt by the residents in the case of apartments," Brown said.

The Jackson businessman said the apartment renters do not receive homestead benefits, and it would be unfair to enact laws that would penalize them further.

Black also maintains that an equal, across-the-board assessment based on value of the property is the only equitable way to assess property.

"The protection and services that a property owner receives from his government are related to the value of his property," Black said. "It is also reasonable that part of his total tax bill should be determined by the value of his property. This is the only way all property owners can bear their proportionate share of the tax burden."

The tax attorney also noted that other, larger taxes were designed to tax income and spending and that property tax was not so designed.

"We have other kinds of taxes, such as income and sales taxes, which account for a much larger share of government revenue than property taxes," Black said. "These taxes are designed to tax profits and spending."

"The ad valorem tax should be directed to the value of property and should not have its objectives confused by attempting to have it relate to income or use, as might be suggested if different classes of property were assessed on different bases."

The pre-filed bill to establish property classifications is shaping up to be one of the most hotly contested floor battles for the new legislature.

Ridership results to be aired

by David Pierson
Long Beach Bureau

Colonel Tom Morris, executive director of the Mississippi Coast Transit Authority (MCTA), announced Friday plans to meet with Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County officials in early January to discuss results of MCTA's three-day, no-fare bus service provided Hancock County last December 12, 13, and 14 in an experimental venture.

Local officials are expecting Morris to present an analysis of the ridership figures for the three days. MCTA reported earlier last week that 1,377 persons took advantage of the free bus service during the three-day demonstration.

Officials seemed to be adopting a wait-and-see position early last week. Hancock County supervisor James Travira said he failed to see how the raw MCTA figures would show who would really utilize the bus service. Ridership totals, he said, were useless unless they could separate pleasure riders from those who would truly benefit from any such bus service and needed mass transit in the county.

Replying to Travira's remarks, Morris said he knew of no way to break down ridership totals to reflect how many people would use the service.

"A lot of these riders thought," Morris said, "were people who would use the bus to travel to and from work." He added that based on his observations of people who boarded the bus with shopping bags, he believed shoppers would also use the bus service.

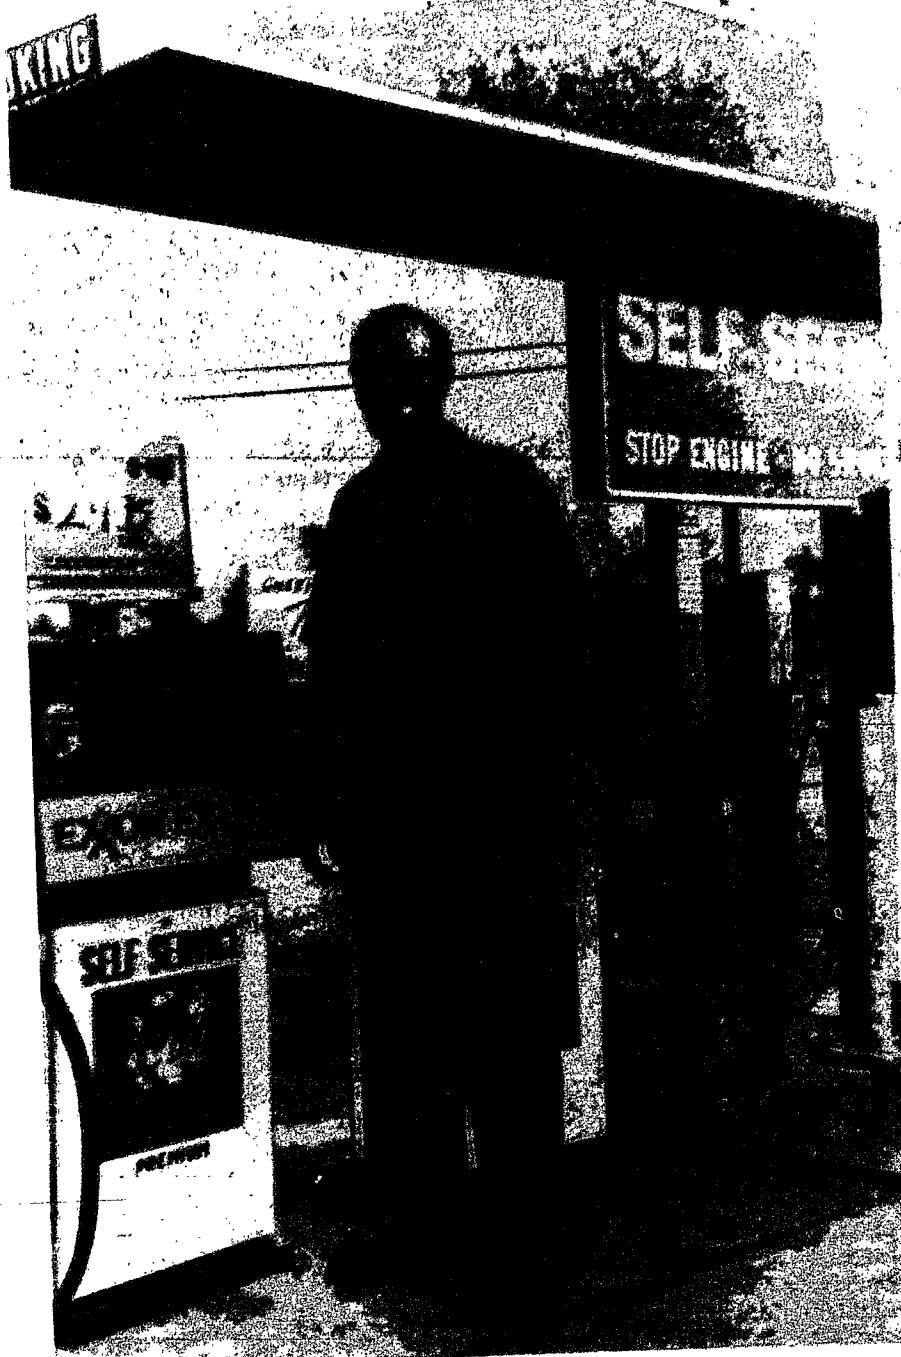

Any further breakdown of the ridership would be impossible, Morris said, because it would have constituted asking each person his reason for boarding the bus. He added that he saw nothing wrong with people boarding the bus just to see what it was like.

"Sure some of the people were riding to see what it was like," said Morris, "but that was the purpose of the demonstration—to show the people how comfortable, safe and enjoyable a transit service is."

Waveland Mayor John Longo last week questioned MCTA's ability to operate a financially feasible service with a daily ridership of 450 (a figure derived from the daily average of the three-day experiment).

Morris said Friday that 325 riders a day in the Hancock County area would cut the projected operating deficit for the first year to less than 25 percent, and that, he said, constituted a financially feasible operation. A 25 percent deficit, he said, would be in the neighborhood of $15,000 to $20,000 a year and this could be further reduced, he added, by an increased ridership. Under the MCTA proposal Hancock County would assume the cost of any operating deficit.

Morris said that bus service for Pass Christian and Long Beach, Miss. would probably not be in operation until late January because accessory equipment (fare boxes, destination signs, etc.) still had to be installed on the new buses.

For tax removal

John Binegar, president of the Gulf Coast Dealers Association, said Saturday he hoped to present State Representative Earl "Buck" Laddner personally with a petition signed by 1,203 Hancock County residents favoring a pre-filed bill calling for the removal of the three cent sales tax levied on a gallon of gasoline. The petitions circulated by 15 local dealers are part of a state-wide drive by gas retailers to eliminate the sales tax.

Gas retailers ready petitions

The President of the Gulf Coast Dealers Association, John Binegar of Waveland, said Saturday that he planned to give State Representative Earl "Buck" Laddner a petition to be presented at the January session of the state legislature in support of a prefiled bill calling for the removal of the three cent sales tax levied on a gallon of gas.

The petitions, which were circulated by 15 local service stations and signed by 1,203 Hancock county residents, are part of a state-wide drive by gas retailers to eliminate what they call "a tax on a tax."

According to Binegar, Mississippi is the only state that has the sales tax. There is presently a four cent federal excise tax and a nine cent state excise tax on every gallon of gas. These taxes, added to the total cost of the gas, is again taxed by the state sales tax.

Binegar said that the actual cost of the gas for him is 31.4 cents a gallon. The federal excise tax, the two state taxes, and the local taxes add another 19 cents a gallon. His markup for profit, Binegar says, is 9.5 cents a gallon to bring the total cost of regular gas to 59.9 cents a gallon.

MEC says

'Lift controls'

The Mississippi Economic Council has called on the Congress of the United States to pass legislation eliminating price controls at the well-head on natural gas.

MEC Resource Development Committee Chairman Bill Beasley of Tupelo said the 20-year-old regulation of natural gas has almost strangled the life out of the natural gas industry threatening Mississippi and other states with severe gas shortages this winter.

"Government regulation of natural gas over the past 20 years has brought exploration and drilling almost to a standstill while the demand for gas has skyrocketed," Beasley said.

"Currently, the demand for natural gas is running 10 percent higher than the supply," Beasley continued. "This situation cannot continue or the United States will be brought to her knees in economic and social disaster."

The Tupelo businessman said natural gas provides one third of our nation's total primary energy needs; and when you remove transportation requirements, for which oil is the main energy source, natural gas provides 43 percent of our total commercial, industrial and residential needs.

Beasley said government control, instituted in 1954, has kept prices from responding to the natural forces of supply and demand, thus causing exploration and drilling to slow for lack of incentive and re-investment capital.

Memorial fund established for slain policeman

Friends and acquaintances of Waveland auxiliary policeman Joe Lewis Jushaway announced last week a memorial fund would be established at Hancock Bank for the wife and four children of the slain patrolman. Jushaway died last Dec. 21 following a shooting at the Krack Bar Lounge in Bay St. Louis.

A spokesman for the Retired Senior Citizens Volunteer Program which is coordinating the fund said that contributions would be presented Jushaway's widow Jan. 15 together with a list of donors.

Checks should be made payable to the Joe Jushaway Memorial Fund and all gifts directed to either Mrs. Murial Fisher or Mrs. Margot James at the RSVP office in the Valena C. Jones Center, Old Spanish Trail and Bookers St., Bay St. Louis, or mailed to RSVP, Box 3, Bay St. Louis, Ms. 39520.

Jushaway, 32, of 507 Morris St., Waveland, Miss., was pronounced dead at Gulfport Memorial Hospital less than 24 hours after being shot repeatedly with a small calibre pistol by Russell Nichols, 27, of 418 Sycamore St., Bay St. Louis last Dec. 20 at the Krack Bar Lounge in Bay St. Louis.

Nichols was charged with murder and was confined in Hancock County Jail without bond.

Joe L. Jushaway

Jushaway was reportedly shot by Nichols because he had participated in an arrest of Nichols some weeks earlier for possession of marijuana charge.

Jushaway was the son-in-law of Bay St. Louis assistant chief of police Douglas Williams.

Less tax Jan. 1

Telephone customers in Mississippi will pay less federal excise tax on their telephone service beginning January 1, according to F. M. Kyle, Jr. South Central Bell's District Manager.

On bills rendered on or after that date, the federal excise tax on local and long distance charges will be reduced one per cent, from eight to seven.

The reduction results from an act passed by congress in 1970, which calls for the gradual reduction of the federal excise tax on telephone service. It will continue to be reduced one per cent a year until it is completely eliminated in 1982.

Lockheed gets environmental contract

PLAINFIELD, N.J. -- Lockheed Electronics Company Inc., has been awarded a $317,000 contract by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to provide aerial collection and interpretation of environmental data, it was announced today.

Work on the one-year contract which also has two one-year options, will be performed at the EPA's National Environmental Research Center in Las Vegas, Nevada. A total of ten companies competed for the program.

According to R.D. Chandler, Jr., company vice president and general manager of the LEC - Aerospace Systems Division which will be performing the work, the amassed data will provide important information needed to satisfy requirements of various EPA water, land and air pollution monitoring objectives.

Lockheed has been assisting the NASA National Space Technology Laboratories of Bay St. Louis, Miss., in developing applications of remotely sensed earth resources data acquired from aircraft ground stations technology satellites and Skylab missions to the Mississippi - Louisiana - Gulf area.

The contract calls for our using three specially modified EPA aircraft which are equipped with remote sensors for obtaining the necessary environmental data from various geographic areas, Chandler explained.

Motion picture activity on upswing

"Motion picture activity in Mississippi is on the upswing" said Charles Allen director of the Mississippi Film Commission. "At present, all sections of the state are being considered for locations and several announcements are anticipated over the next few months."

Under the auspices of the Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board, the Film Commission has been quite successful in promoting Mississippi as an attractive location for films during its short existence.

Chairman of the Film Commission is writer-producer Thomas Hal Phillips. In addition to Phillips and Allen, other members include USM cinema professor Larry Albers, actor-writer James Best, Jackson State drama professor Ed Fisher and businessman, Robert Harper. According to Phillips the expertise and know-how of the commission and staff are major factors in the success of the program to date.

This week Galaxy Film Productions of New York announced plans to begin filming a motion picture in the Jackson area in early 1975. The film, entitled "Turtle Heaven," is an action thriller dealing in parapsychology. The plot involves a young girl who is adopted by a college professor and his wife and whose mother attempts to reclaim her.

The producer-director for the film is Robert Allen Schnitzer. Schnitzer has stated that production will begin in mid-January and will continue through February. Associate producer Dale White, a Pascagoula native, has been in Jackson during the last few days securing locations for the film.

Locations already selected in Jackson include Millsaps College campus, Lake Cavalier and several sites in local shopping centers and residential areas.

Allen said that the Film Commission's goal for movie productions in the state this fiscal year is $8 million. "and from talking with interested producers," he continued, "it appears that we will easily surpass this figure."

Former convict leads St. Rose de Lima choir

The Saint Rose De Lima Catholic Church, under the musical supervision of James Carroll Booker III performed an arrangement of one of the local pianist-composer's original numbers Tuesday during a special Christmas midnight Mass.

Booker, who says he has been in the entertainment business for approximately 22 years, said anyone who "grew up in Bay St. Louis as I did and came back 22 years later, can plainly see that it's getting to be very much together."

The song, which has a jumping bluesy beat, is sung by Booker in the lead with the choir singing backup.

Booker said he feels contemporary music has as much place in the modern church as the works of Bach, Mozart, Beethoven and other European composers.

"After all," Booker said, "everyone has to communicate with God in his own way."

The song entitled "Slowly But Surely ('The World's Getting Back Together') was written by the young black artist at Angola Prison in Louisiana.

"SLOWLY BUT SURELY" (THE WORLD'S GETTIN' BACK TOGETHER)

You know the Lord's got the world goin' round
And round and slowly gettin' back together
I know it's gonna get back together right now
He got a great big plan
It's greater than superman
Oh well I'll tell you no lie
It's hipper than superfly
It keeps the world goin' round and round
And slowly gettin' back together
That's all people, right back together

I may be dead and gone
Just helpin' the ground slowly rotten
But the truth'll be living on
It never will be forgotten
Oh, but the birds and the ants
The trees and plants
They're gonna bring me all the news
It won't be no use
Because the world still goes around and around
It's slowly gettin' back together
That's all brother, right back together

POSTMORTEM

'Twas the day after Christmas, and all through the house
 Only one creature was stirring—a fat little mouse,
 Who was happily gorging on Christmas cake crumbs.
 The children were out in the yard with their toys:
 Talking dolls for the girls and footballs for the boys,
 Which Santa had brought down the chimney with care—
 A tight fit for the old gent in red underwear!
 The wife was still sleeping, worn to a tatter
 By the noise of the reindeer, they made such a clatter!
 So I cleaned up the kitchen, parlor and hall
 And shoveled the papers, ribbons, boxes and all
 Into the fireplace, and then viewed the scene
 Of last evening's revels: it seemed like a dream.
 That the walls were still standing in sunlight's bright gleam.
 There were toys of all kinds scattered 'round on the floor,
 Their entrails protruding, springs twisted and sore;
 Dolls' dresses and coiffures, they made quite a pile,
 A train that already had run its last mile,
 Roller skates, tennis gear, puzzles and games,
 Magic sets and toy kitchens, and dolls without names,
 Fire engines and motor boats, books with torn pages,
 Bunnies and bears in wild animals' cages.
 The table lamp, shattered, lay under a chair,
 And the mantelpiece knickknacks no longer were there;
 In fact, the whole room, once so peaceful and hearty,
 Looked as if reindeer and kids had staged quite a party!
 Then as I gloomed o'er the rubble, a sweet thought became clear:
 Thank goodness, 'twon't happen again for a year!!

AND WE HOPE THAT YOU TOO WERE FULL MERRY AND BRIGHT
 AS SANTA CLAUS WISHED YOU "MERRY CHRISTMAS—GOOD NIGHT!"

Wahington Report

By: Rep. Trent Lott

HELPING OURSELVES

If some of our giveaway programs could be restructured along the lines of the Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972, I think we would breathe much easier when we part with our tax dollars.

The Coastal Zone Management Act, you see, requires initiative on the part of the recipient before federal funds are made available. It even requires a deposit, in the form of matching funds, before your tax-dollar can be released for coastal management programs.

In other words, the federal government seems to be saying, "We'll help you only if you help yourself."

Now, that's my kind of Federal program!

Actually, the Act established a national objective to restore, protect and enhance our country's coastal zone resources. It encouraged prudent use of land and water resources. And it encouraged participation by local and state governments in the development of such programs.

Basically, the Coastal Zone Management program awards matching grants to coastal states and territories in three categories: (1) two-thirds support of the cost of developing a management program; (2) two-thirds support of the cost of administering an approved program; and (3) one-half support of the cost of establishing and operating estuarine sanctuaries for research and educational purposes.

The individual states must come up with the other one-third of the money required to develop and administer an approved program. They must also provide the remaining one-half required for estuarine sanctuaries.

All of these facts came to mind last week when the House performed "housekeeping" chores on the Coastal Zone Management Act, amending it in several places to bring it up to date. When all was said and done, we had added another $6 million a year into the program.

Though, I didn't mind in appropriations for that. I think it is important to encourage state and local use of water resources.

What federal agencies should do is to encourage state and local use of water resources. That's the way to get the most out of the program.

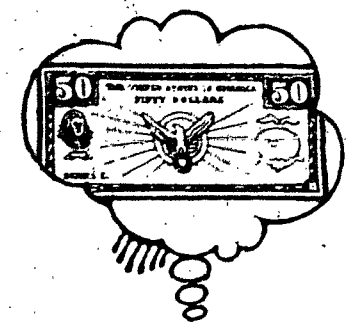

but both are being developed with federal assistance. Both will provide recreation facilities in local areas.

"Since the states have expressed their enthusiastic support of the Coastal Zone Management program," I told my colleagues in a floor speech, "and have tangibly demonstrated their good faith intentions; often by providing funding in excess of their matching grant requirements, the additional authorization called for by this bill, H.R. 16215, is obviously justified."

Closer to home, Mississippi has received more than $100,000 in federal money for a three-year development period. Of the 34 states eligible for the program, some 31 have already received federal funds.

I think that's indication enough that local and state agencies are fully capable of directing their own environmental activities.

Veterans Information

Q—I am a veteran with a 60 per cent service-connected disability. Will the Veterans Administration pay an allowance for my son who was born two months ago?

A—Yes, but you must notify the agency by filing a claim within one year of your child's birth.

Q—I lost my National Service Life Insurance policy which I have carried since World War II. Can I get a copy from the Veterans Administration?

A—Yes. Request a copy from the VA insurance center where you pay your premiums. If you had a paid-up policy, direct your request to the insurance center in Philadelphia.

Q—My father was killed in service during the Vietnam War, which makes me eligible for War Orphans Educational Assistance from the Veterans Administration. Now that I'm in the military service, can I take advantage of this benefit?

A—Sorry, no. A person eligible under the War Orphans Educational Assistance program may not participate in the program while in service.

Social Security News

Students 18-22 getting social security checks should report changes in their earnings, school enrollment, and marital status to social security, according to Charles E. Wofford, social security district manager in Gulfport.

Over 650,000 students 18 and over get monthly social security payments because a parent gets disability or retirement benefits or has died. Students can continue to get payments to age 22 or slightly beyond for undergraduates—as long as they remain full-time students and unmarried.

"Students getting checks should notify social security immediately if they marry, leave school, or start attending on a part-time basis so we can stop their monthly payments as required by law," Wofford said.

Changes in total yearly earnings from part-time or temporary jobs can also affect social security payments to students, he said.

"If you're a student getting payments and know your earnings for 1974 will be over $2,400, you should report that to social security," he said. "Otherwise, you might get benefits you'll have to pay back later."

Social security payments are reduced by $1 for every $2 earned over $2,400, in a year. No matter how much they earn for the year, people can get their full social security payment for any month in which they neither earn $200 nor do substantial work in their own business.

Transfers from one school to another should also be reported to social security by students getting social security payments, according to Wofford.

Drugs and your health

by John F. Russell, M.D.

SPEED KILLS! We've heard that phrase over and over until it has become accepted as a truism without even thinking about the meaning behind the words. On the highway in an automobile we can understand what is meant by "speed kills"; in the area of drug abuse, the meaning is more elusive and therefore more difficult to understand.

First, what is speed? At one time this word referred specifically to methedrine, a methamphetamine. Now it covers all the so-called uppers, stimulants, diet pills, amphetamines. These are the drugs that "speed up" the body and mind. They actually do help one to work harder, run faster, do more. They put all the body's resources to work and borrow on stored energy. Much in the way a frightened person can run faster than he thought possible, or an angry person may fight and beat someone twice his size, so the body on "speed" brings power and energy from the hidden stores within, preparing it for "fight" or "flight."

At first appearance this may seem to be a great advantage, to be able to do far more than usual, and it is, at first. But how long can a body run at top speed before its parts wear out? How long can the heart pump two or three times as fast as normal before it simply stops? The human body is a marvelous mechanism, equipped with all sorts of safety devices and warning systems. Few of us can run very far before we are out of breath, heart pounding, with a "stitch in" in our side. The body is telling us to stop, we are overloading the system, the safety valve has warned up and we must rest before trying to go on. But the person on "speed" has no warning; the system is overridden by the medication; there is no safety valve. He keeps running because the amphetamine has called on the body to go faster, use more energy, bring on the emergency resources. Then suddenly there are no more resources, the body has used them all, and it stops. It is because of this and the fact that several athletes have simply dropped dead on playing field from "speed" that it can truly be said that "SPEED KILLS."

Yet, that is not the only reason. The "speed freak" or heavy user of amphetamines is actually dangerous. Chronic abuse of stimulants may cause bizarre personality changes, the most common being paranoia. The abuser feels persecuted, suspicious of everyone without reason; he is aggressive and frantically active. In that mental condition, he is "out to get you before you get him." Thus, the one ON speed may kill.

It is obvious that one cannot continue long abusing uppers before the body forces him in one way or another to stop. At the end of the high is the crash, irritability, exhaustion, severe depression. This then leads to a desire for more speed to get back to the high, to be once again stimulated, energetic, active, to get "up." It becomes a vicious circle and one difficult to break.

In the drug culture, where even the miserable junkie is acceptable, the speed freak is feared. He is violent and unpredictable and therefore, avoided. There is no question about it...SPEED KILLS!

News From Parchman

The 10 Day Christmas Leave Program, which was instituted here at the penitentiary during World War II, is presently underway during this holiday season.

The program, which consists of a 10 day vacation for the prisoner, is one of the penitentiary's rehabilitation programs and has been termed as "one of the most successful programs in the penitentiary's history" according to Associate Superintendent Liberty Cash.

"This Christmas program has done as much towards the prisoner's rehabilitation as anything else we have," stated Cash. "One of our major objectives in prison rehabilitation is to help build and strengthen the family unit of the prisoner and the results of this program are amazingly favorable."

This year approximately 800 of nearly 2000 inmates at Parchman and Lambert applied for this Christmas leave Program and approximately 320 inmates were accepted.

Three main qualifications must be met before a prisoner is ever considered for this program. First, an inmate must have been at the penitentiary for at least one full year. Secondly, a prisoner must have been a half-trusty for at least a half year. And, finally, the prisoner must have a destination and the ways and means to reach this destination.

If an inmate meets these qualifications, his name and record are submitted to the Classification Committee. If he is approved by this committee, his name is submitted to the superintendent, and if approved, submitted to the governor's office, which has the final judgement on whether the prisoner will receive the 10 day Christmas leave.

The Christmas Leave Program is currently divided into eight shifts due to the number of prisoners that have been accepted into it. The first shift began December 2, 1974 and the final shift will end February 27, 1975, thus making the program approximately 3 months in length.

Administrative Assistant Rev. J.T. McGowan, with assistance from Mrs. Jean McBride, receptionist at the penitentiary, has taken it upon himself personally, to help bring Christmas cheer throughout each prison camp during the religious holidays.

Since the holiday season arrived, McGowan has organized a talent show at each camp which consists of competing music acts performing religious and gospel music. First, second, and third place prizes are awarded at each camp with $25 dollars being given to the first place talent.

McGowan, is also in charge of the decorations at each prison camp. He has organized a program in which the inmates decorate their respective camps themselves.

This year first place in decorations was awarded to First Offenders Camp.

McGowan, who came to the penitentiary under Supt. Jack K. Reed's administration has taken much pride in building the prisoner's morale.

Bounds promoted MPC Laurel Division manager

Waldo Bounds of Long Beach has been promoted to manager of Mississippi Power Company's Laurel Division, and Joe Sumrall, Hattiesburg Division engineer, has been named to succeed him as Gulfport Division superintendent, according to Victor J. Daniel Jr.

The Gulfport Division of the Company provides service to its customers in Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, and the southern portion of Forrest counties.

Bounds came to the Gulf Coast in 1968 as division superintendent. Prior to that date, he lived in Laurel for 12 years, working as division engineer, assistant division manager, and division superintendent.

WALDO BOUNDS

He joined Mississippi Power Company in 1946 as an assistant engineer in Meridian.

A native of Bailey, Bounds graduated from Mississippi State University with a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering. He is a registered professional engineer.

On the Gulf Coast, Bounds is a director of the Chamber of Commerce in Long Beach, where he and his wife live, and is a member of the Gulfport Kiwanis Club. He is a deacon in Gulfport's First Baptist Church.

Bounds and his wife, the former Eugenia McWilliams of Dekalb, have one daughter, Mrs. Douglas Tillery of Laurel.

Sumrall, a native of Agricola, attended the University of Mississippi and Virginia Military Institute. After graduating with honors and receiving the bachelor's degree in electrical engineering from Mississippi State University, he joined the Company as a junior engineer in the transmission department in 1949.

In Gulfport, he became assistant engineer and then engineer. In 1955, Sumrall transferred to Hattiesburg as engineer and later as senior engineer. He was named division engineer in October, 1968.

A registered professional engineer, Sumrall has been active in numerous professional and community activities in Hattiesburg. He is vice president of the southeast area chapter of the Mississippi Engineering Society and chairman of the Hattiesburg City Electrical Board.

He has served as director of the Hattiesburg Jaycees, president of the Hattiesburg Breakfast Optimist Club, president of the Forrest County chapter of the Mississippi State University Alumni Association, and a member of the Hattiesburg Metropolitan Club.

Sumrall and his wife, the former Margie Sellers of Richton, are members of Hattiesburg's First Baptist Church. They are the parents of three children, Mrs. Gross Scruggs Jr. of Key West, Florida, William Joseph, and Jennifer Leigh.

CAUGHT HITTING THE BOOKS, senior computer science major Elise Donaville clearly shows why she has maintained a 3.86 cumulative average while attending Jackson State. When she graduates in May, Elise will have attended Jackson State only three years instead of the usual four. The Pass Christian native presently ranks second in the senior class and was recently offered a full fellowship for graduate study from Michigan State University. The aspiring computer researcher is also seeking similar fellowship offers from Purdue University, UCLA, and Stanford University. At JSU, Elise is a member of the Newman Club, the Computer Science Club, and is a pledge of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. The youngest of four children, Elise is the daughter of Mrs. Marie Donaville of Gulfport.

Farm Bureau scrutinizes property taxes

The role of property taxes in the fight against inflation is under scrutiny by the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation, according to federation president Hugh M. Arant of Ruleville who asserted Monday in a press conference in Jackson that home and landowners throughout the state may see their real property taxes more than double or triple this year as a classification system for property is not provided for by the legislature through a statewide referendum.

Arant said the Farm Bureau is asking the legislature to pass a senate-house concurrent resolution which would allow the people to decide whether they want a system of property classification for taxing purposes or not.

"We believe this is the fairest and most democratic way of deciding a matter that appears to be the most crucial one to face Mississippi property owners in our generation."

Already at least 35 other states in the United States have some form of land-use based taxation, the Farm Bureau spokesman said. "In fact, what we're recommending is what Alabama and many other states already have done — that is, provide a classification of real property for taxing purposes according to ability to pay. The bill we support would call for assessing utilities at 30 percent; commercial and industrial properties at 25 percent; and all homes and farmlands at 15 percent.

"The reasons for this sliding scale is based on ability to pay. Utilities are able to pay because they simply bill their customers for whatever overhead expenses they need. Commercial and industrial property owners likewise pass overhead expenses on to customers in the prices they establish.

"But this passing of the buck stops, generally speaking, at this level because homeowners must pay the taxes without sharing the load with anyone else. Farmland owners, likewise, do not set prices for what they sell and agriculture is in a wide-spread price depression. Many farmlands are not income-producing units at all but are an important part of our potential for future production. These units must not be forced into abandonment or sale by tax inflation," Arant said.

Arant explained that while "equalization of taxes" has a good ring to the average hearer, unless they understand what this really means it becomes a very ominous sound to anyone who is already aware of what reassessment, alone, has done to his tax bill in the past 12 months in certain counties and what it will do in the future if voters are not given an opportunity to act.

Coal-to-electricity formula studied

While the federal space agency's right hand is planning the mid-1975 linkup of American and Soviet spacecraft and the shuttle system of the late 1970s, its left hand is dipping into the Ford administration's drive for new nationwide power sources.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration's latest venture into the energy field is an 11-month study aimed at finding practical methods to produce electricity from coal.

The project is funded jointly by the National Science Foundation, the Interior Department's Office of Coal Research and NASA.

The study must come up with development and operating costs and environmental impact for a variety of systems using coal or coal-derived fuels to generate electrical power.

Ultimate findings will be submitted to the nation's utilities, already searching for improved ways to produce electricity from the nation's abundant coal resources.

Conventional fossil-fueled power plants operate at efficiencies of up to only 40 per cent. That means 60 per cent of the fuel potential is being wasted.

Greater efficiencies are possible, however, utility engineers concede. For example, a potassium Rankine system added as a "topping cycle" (additional heating stage) may boost efficiency to 50 per cent. That would reduce fuel consumption by 20 per cent, they estimate, to achieve the same power level.

A chief mission of the NASA study is to analyze a whole range of ways to bring plant efficiencies up to 50 per cent.

It will compare such energy-producing systems as advanced steam plants; open and closed-cycle gas turbine systems; combined systems, including a gas turbine used with a steam plant; supercritical carbon dioxide systems; liquid metal Rankine topping cycle; magnetohydrodynamic systems and fuel cells — already used to produce power in spacecraft.

The power payoff performance of each system will be lined up against its development and operating costs, resource requirements and impact on the environment.

The study also must consider detrimental factors such as air and water pollution and the amount of land required for next-generation power plants using new generating systems.

To assess the impact on natural resources, it must estimate the volume of coal required to power each proposed new energy system, along with the use of critical materials.

Study results will be used by NASA's Lewis Research Center, Cleveland, Ohio, to build an experimental model. It will determine whether it's cheaper to ship coal from the West to power plants in other parts of the nation or to convert coal into a high-powered gas or liquid first, then pipe it directly to the plants.

Antifreeze situation is not critical

Antifreeze is in tight supply this year as winter approaches. There already are shortages in some areas of the nation, partly because motorists in larger than usual numbers have been buying it two to three months earlier than in previous years.

The Automotive Information Council (AIC) says many drivers have been purchasing more than they need, in the wake of earlier reports that there might be an antifreeze drought this year.

But don't panic, even if you live in a region where the mercury drops sharply beginning about this time of year.

It may not be necessary for you to change antifreeze this season if your car's cooling system has an adequate mixture of antifreeze and water to meet anticipated low temperatures.

Your service station operator can measure the percentage of antifreeze vis-a-vis water in your radiator and tell you whether it has deteriorated to a point where it might fail to provide adequate winter protection.

Antifreeze usually can be used for more than one season if there is no evidence of sediment in the cooling system.

Historian to trace past, present, future of Long Beach

Once upon a time, Long Beach served as the "bread basket" of America with truck farmers of this area shipping their produce to all corners of the nation. That is one of the many facts that M. James Stevens, gulf coast historian, will talk about as he traces the history of Long Beach at the monthly dinner meeting of the Long Beach Civitan Club

January 6, 7:30 p.m. at the Ramada Inn in Long Beach. Stevens owned and operated the Confederate Inn, as well as the Confederate Motel. Hurricane Camille destroyed the Confederate Inn but he still operates the motel. He helped in the establishment of the Gulf Islands National Seashore and in the preservation and restoration of Fort Massachusetts.

He has been president of the Mississippi Innkeepers Association and the Gulfport Area Chamber of Commerce, and was a member of the board of directors of the Gulfport Chamber of Commerce.

Stevens now serves as vice-president of the Mississippi Coast Historical and Genealogical Society and was formerly on the board of the Mississippi Historical Society. He has been, for the past five years, chairman of the board of the Gulf Coast Family Counseling Agency. Ray Canada, Club President, urges all Civitans, their wives, and guests to be present at this dutch treat dinner meeting. In fact, he says, "every citizen of Long Beach who is interested in the past, present, and future of Long Beach should make plans to hear this most interesting speaker".

CARE Helped 29 Million

Almost 29 million needy people were helped by CARE food, self-help-development, medical and emergency programs in 36 countries of Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East, according to the 1974 annual report just issued by the aid agency.

Declaring that the world food and energy crisis brought an "unprecedented challenge to CARE during the fiscal year," Frank L. Goffio, Executive Director, reported that "contributions from concerned Americans and Canadians totalling $18,533,402 enabled us to help meet that challenge." Contributions were up $4,467,722 over the same 12-month period in the previous year.

With individual contributions as the base, CARE obtained cost and services inputs by the governments of peoples being helped, U.S. government donations of farm commodities, and special project funds from both U.S. and Canadian governments. "All this, combined with frugal management by CARE, stretched every dollar, provided by the public to nearly $6 worth of aid supplied to the less fortunate—a total of $109,064,414 in goods and services," Executive Director Goffio explained.

"Central to helping people help themselves is that participating countries and individual beneficiaries invest whatever funds, materials, services they can in CARE programs. Over 130 such people-to-people partnerships were in force in nations around the world last year." Among highlights of CARE's work during the year: More than 29 million people, nearly all children, received daily anti-malnutrition feedings, which not only save lives but enable youngsters to grow into healthy, productive adults.

Emergency food, along with medical and other relief aid, went to seven million victims of droughts, floods and other disasters, including such parched African countries as Niger and Chad and, paradoxically, flood-stricken areas in Pakistan and the Philippines. To Indian villages suffering from drought, CARE delivered 34,850,000 pounds of food for over two million people.

Through MEDICO, the medical arm of CARE, long-term teams of doctors, nurses, technicians, augmented by over 100 volunteer specialists, helped treat close to one-half million patients, while training local personnel in modern techniques, so they can reach many millions in years to come.

Numerous and varied self-help agricultural projects to produce more food were accelerated. Families were trained in modern farming techniques and irrigation canals were constructed. Other self-help projects ranged from helping build schools in 10 countries to providing safer drinking water right in villages by constructing water systems in 14 countries. Some 185 new school kitchens and 68 additional nutrition centers were also initiated.

"CARE's war on hunger must be stepped up to help stem spreading starvation," Executive Director Goffio said. "With the continued support of CARE's generous friends, and new supporters, we will move ahead helping people around the world shape a better world for themselves and their children."

Bank announces promotions

By L.S. (Doc) Elliott

Don't think too many sportsmen went fishing over the weekend for two reasons. The first because it was only a couple of days before Christmas and secondly the rains of the last part of the week muddled Pearl River and most other places. Speckle trout and red fishing slowed down. Bass fishing was also on the slow side due to bad water and low tides.

Sunday the few who went fishing had a bad day. No big catches were made of any kind of fish. Among those out were Sheldon Seuzeneau and son Sheldon, Alden Mauffray, Yours Truly and Perre Quinitini.

On the hunting side Harry Roman, Louis Decell, Hoke Ogden and Wop Glover who went quail and dove hunting reported not too hot on both sports.

Among the happenings before Christmas the Senior Citizens Christmas party was held on Monday, Dec. 16th. The Garden Club sent plants to be given away; Fred Horn and Paul Lewis sang for entertainment and St. Stanislaus students helped serve refreshments.

The Bay-Waveland Gun and Rod Club and the American Legion both held their Christmas parties on Dec. 20. These affairs were well attended and all present had a wonderful time. Frank Ladner is president of the gun and rod club, and Clayton Thomas is Commander of the American Legion.

Olson Grady and Gladys Ferrara were married Dec. 20, 1974, another happy event. Olson said he loves fishing so Gladys will have to fall in line. She said she was willing.

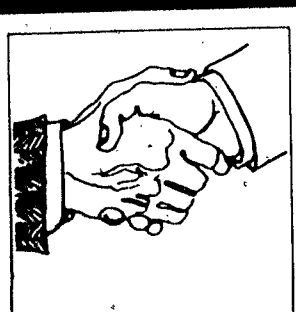

Willard Gavagnie is a natural born fisherman. He was telling me of the big catches he has been making. His fishing partner is Frank Ladner, good in his own right when it comes to getting them. They make a good pair.

George Heitzman and Al Vetter came in on some of the fish stories told. Capt. Tom Cain who owned the fishing boat John Mavor on which we had some swell fishing trips and Jeannette Cain have their home on Watts Bayou. Tom is a seasoned fisherman and Jeannette said she wants to learn how to fish. It's easy if you try.

Elmore Hymel is an old bachelor from Luling, La. He does all kind of fishing and always ready to go. He said whether we catch 'em or not, it don't make no difference, just go.

Mr. and Mrs. McCulloch both love to fish, crab, etc. Catching them comes first and eating them comes second.

At State Farm, person to person health insurance receives that old-fashion idea of personal attention. Yet it helps protect against today's soaring medical costs. It can even make sure you get money to help meet those extra hospital expenses. Or an income if you're disabled. Let me show you how.

Was a pleasure meeting Morgan O'Rourke, Jr. He said

Rita Marti and Hazel Buckley had two numbers dedicated to them at the Senior Citizen Party, the "Lord's Prayer" and "Love Makes The World go Round."

Was interesting meeting

John L. Galivan who is retired from the United Fruit Co. He is a former basketball player. Played with the old Commercial League, C.A.A. and R.A.U. leagues. His father was John A. Galivan who was the engineer on the old Smokey Mary which used to run from New Orleans to Milneburg on Lake Pontchartrain. It was a L & N Branch road 38 years ago. Old timers remember this train. John is now a local citizen, and volunteer for "Meals on Wheels," a wonderful help to Senior Citizens.

County Agent's Notes

MANAGE GRAZING
Complete grazing off all frosted grass this month as digestibility drops to about 25 percent. The cows will need protein and energy supplements to make most efficient use of the frosted grass.

Cold weather has delayed growth of late October and November planted ryegrass. Grazing these too soon will reduce your winter forage production.

Control grazing to get the most from your grass. As little as one hour a day grazing will help stretch your pastures.

Protect young clover from grazing so that it will give production in late February and early March. Where clover is planted with ryegrass, do not allow the grass to shade out the clover.

DRAINAGE IS IMPORTANT
Fields that contain potholes or stay wet always cause problems in planting on time, cultivating on time and making precision applications of herbicides to control weeds. Here are some suggestions that may help.

Grade fields to the desired slope either by land forming or disking and planing so that water moves off at a reasonable rate.

Soils that have poor internal drainage, such as heavy clays, should be rowed up in the fall so that the beds will have good surface drainage in the spring.

Plowing in the fall will also permit these soils to mellow through wetting and drying, freezing and thawing through the winter. Don't plow fields that are subject to severe erosion.

Clean all drainage ditches and be sure that field ditches are open into tributary ditches and that tributary ditches open into main channels.

These are not the only things you can do to improve water management, but they will help keep your tractors and shoes out of the mud next spring.

LIME FOR SOYBEANS
Even on rented land, a ton of lime per acre will pay for itself the first year if applied early enough. One out of four soybean acres has a pH of less than 5.6. Liming land this acid will result in increases of 7 to 10 bushels per acre. This means that a short term lease is no excuse for not applying lime, if it is needed.

CUT FEED COSTS

You can help cut the costs of wintering the beef herd by separating the cows with calves from the dry cows.

Cows with calves need more feed and it is wasteful to feed dry cows more than they need.

Also, separate first calf heifers from older cows. They require more feed and more timid at the feed bunk.

NITROGEN
Among the 16 essential elements for plant growth, perhaps nitrogen is the best known. In years gone by, if a crop was not growing properly, the common remedy was to apply more and more nitrogen. It works almost overnight to "green-up" sick looking plants.

In plants, nitrogen is involved in a wide variety of important functions. The quick green color is a result of more chlorophyll in the plant. A molecule of chlorophyll is formed by four atoms of nitrogen surrounding the central atom of magnesium. When nitrogen is applied, increased chlorophyll is responsible for the deep green color.

Another very important role of nitrogen is in the formation of protein. Besides being an integral part of the protein molecule, nitrogen is lacking; this conversion is slowed down and carbohydrates accumulate in the plant cells.

The ultimate source of nitrogen is from the air. Normal air contains 78 percent nitrogen. Unfortunately, plants cannot use nitrogen in its natural elemental form. Rather it must be converted, by various processes, into the nitrate form (NO<sub>3</sub>), the ammonium form (NH<sub>4</sub>), or urea which are forms commonly absorbed by plants.

Elemental or atmospheric nitrogen is converted to a usable form by Rhizobia (the bacteria living on the roots of legumes), by free-living microorganisms in the soil, by lightning and by industrial processes.

Each legume has a particular strain of Rhizobium bacteria to convert atmospheric nitrogen (fixation) for plant use. The amount fixed ranges from 50 pounds per acre in soybeans, 103 pounds per acre in white clover, to 194 pounds per acre in alfalfa. The plant uses most of the nitrogen, but some is left over for the following crop. Soybeans may leave 10-20 pounds per acre; white clover, 50-70 pounds per acre for the next crop.

Free living bacteria convert plant residue and other organic matter. After a series of reactions, the organic matter is changed into the ammonium form. Current estimates range between 6 and 25 pounds of nitrogen per acre per year.

Rainfall and lightning may account for 1-50 pounds of nitrogen per acre per year depending on air quality, the amount of rainfall, and the amount of lightning present during the year. The higher figure may be more common in areas of heavy industrialization where nitrogen may be discharged into the atmosphere.

Synthetic ammonia production leads the industrial processes. This is the combination of atmospheric nitrogen with hydrogen to form ammonia (NH<sub>3</sub>).

Another important industrial source of nitrogen results as a by-product of the petroleum industry.

In the soil, nitrogen availability is greatly affected by pH. At pH 5.5 nitrogen is only 77 percent effective. At pH 7.0 nitrogen is 100 percent effective for plant use. Agricultural limestone is used to maintain the optimum pH in the soil.

Recreational vehicle sales pick up again

The energy crisis may have proved one thing to the recreational vehicle (RV) industry: The business isn't another Hula-Hoop operation, a passing fancy. And, RV manufacturers hope 1975 sales will prove it.

When first signals of the gasoline crisis began appearing about a year ago, manufacturers started taking large steps to keep ahead of it. There were several alternatives.

— Some, who sniffed the crisis well in advance — and had the engineering talent to do it — rapidly converted their operations to other products, such as mobile homes.

— The sharp sales decline — which started in late 1973 and bottomed out by early 1974 — resulted in many producers quitting the business entirely, some filing for bankruptcy. About 40 of 300 manufacturers went this route and 50 per cent of RV dealers dropped their RV lines.

Smaller operations merged with other small companies, forming new firms with broader bases to better weather the economy.

— Major producers, however, cinched up their belts, ceased operations in smaller plants, laid off employees, stopped production and waited.

The gasoline crisis appears to be over, and RV manufacturers have their fingers crossed there won't be another of similar magnitude.

Now, they're battling inflation which has driven up the cost of materials and made some products — such as fiber glass, steel and aluminum — hard to get.

Being gun-shy, surviving RV manufacturers are edging back into production to fill orders and are cautiously watching what the consumer will do for the remainder of this year and 1975.

Meanwhile, the consumer also cautions not to buy an expensive luxury item only to be stuck with it in another possible crisis, is moving slowly back to the RV market.

"By March, the gasoline crisis had eased and RV buyers began shopping around again. In fact, the consumer demand across the nation hit us so hard, we were actually caught with our production lines down," said Paul Du Pre, a Recreational Vehicle Industry Association official based in Chicago.

He projected that 500,000 to 550,000 RVs will be sold this year, compared with 747,500 last year. He had no forecast for 1975.

Du Pre said RV sales are moving up each month this year from the winter slump. "But, for each month we move up, we're still well behind sales last year the same period," he said, adding that 1973 is regarded as the best RV year ever.

The RVIA June marketing report shows a steady improvement, although well below last year's figures, in motor home sales from January to June.

Church to host program
St. Patrick's Episcopal Church in Long Beach will host an open house and carol singing program to celebrate "Epiphany Eve," the 12th day of Christmas, January 5 from 2 to 4 p.m., according to Rev. Pete Peterson.

Rev. Peterson said this will be the first of several Operation Understanding programs sponsored by the Long Beach Ministerial Alliance.

"All Christians, regardless of their individual faith," are invited to the event, said Rev. Peterson. Refreshments will be served.
